Steve Taylor was in his room lying down for sleep while his mother Katelyn was taking a shower. She wanted to bathe before going to bed herself. The 5-year-old boy was just about to fall asleep when he heard a loud noise from the bathroom. He hurried to have a look.

When he got to the bathroom, he found his mother lying in the bathtub (浴缸) with blood coming from her head. She had an epileptic fit (癫痫发作) and didn't know anything. However, little Steve kept a cool head.

He first went to his 2-month-old sister and put her in a blanket (毛毯), placing her on the sofa. He then climbed up a chair to open the door. Once the door opened, Steve picked her up from the sofa and went to his neighbor's house. The neighbor, Jessica, was very surprised to see her two young neighbors standing outside her door at such a strange hour.

She first thought the little boy was coming to talk about his dog. But he said, "No, my mom died in the shower. Can you take care of us?" Jessica ran to next door in a hurry and found Katelyn in the shower with the water still running. She called 911 and help arrived just in time.

Ms. Taylor believed that her son saved her life. If not her son, she probably would have died right there in her bathtub. Steve was praised by the local fire department. They showed up at his house with their fire truck to present him with some special prizes.

C

So, it's exam time again. Have you done the necessary work to get good marks? Sleeping with the textbook under the pillow (枕头) doesn't work. The best way is to space your practice out, rather than cram (塞) it all together. Just as a scientist called Tom Stafford advises, if you organize five hours of study into one hour a day, you'll remember more than if you study for five hours on one day.

▲ Get pens and paper and start working! Students who can test themselves earlier will be better at retrieving the knowledge from the memory and keep it in the long run. John Dunlosky, a professor in the US, suggests that “you start by reading a textbook with your favorite pens and colors, and then write down the important ideas on small cards. While doing so, you actually try to test yourselves on them.”

Good revision (复习) should give you confidence, but if you are still worried, it's not harmful to follow some special customs. In Japan, it seems to be a tradition for students to eat Katsudon before a test. This is a bowl of rice with egg and pork pieces. The name of the dish makes people think of the word “katsu”, meaning “winning”. For some students in South Korea, the key to success is not washing their hair before an exam, because they believe they could wash all the knowledge out of their heads. And in different parts of the world, there are always those who believe in their “lucky underwear”.

The bottom line is that you need to study, eat a good meal, sleep well on the eve of the test, and believe that your efforts will pay off.

Good luck in your exam!

61. When you “space your practice out”, you _____.
  - A. study for at least 5 hours on one day
  - B. sleep with your textbook under the pillow
  - C. organize 5 hours of study into one hour a day
62. The underlined word “retrieving” would probably mean “_____”.
  - A. filling in
  - B. getting back
  - C. giving away
63. Which sentence can be best put in ▲ in paragraph 2?
  - A. Don't read your textbooks early.
  - B. Don't depend on memory alone.
  - C. Don't test yourselves very often.
64. Which of the following is TRUE according to paragraph 3?
  - A. The word “Katsudon” sounds similar to “winning” in South Korea.
  - B. In some countries, washing hair brings bad luck after having exams.
  - C. Some people might wear special underwear before important events.
65. What does the writer advise students to do before tests?
  - A. Prepare your exams well and be confident.
  - B. Choose your favorite pens and stay up late.
  - C. Follow some customs and enjoy yourselves.

Are you still OK to get the music ready? I think pop music will be better than country music or jazz for the party.

As for food, I know we've talked about serving hot food, but I think people will be happier to have some ice cream after dinner. Betty is bringing cakes and I'm happy to buy some drinks.

If you have any questions, please call me or Mr. Black, the restaurant manager, at 6433627.
Bye.
